Negatives include their hefty price tag, the dim screen and lack of audio. Launched in August 2012, the Lenovo ThinkPad X1 Carbon series is Lenovo's 14-inch high-end laptop series designed for enterprise and corporate use. Wikipedia: ThinkPad X1 Carbon Identifying your X1 carbon generation Image not available for color: To see this video download Flash Player Produced by Lenovo, the fifth generation of ThinkPad X1 Carbon, is a high-end notebook. The base model came with 4GB of memory, an Intel Core i5-3317U processor and a 128 GB SSD. The screen made use of multi-touch technology that detected simultaneous inputs of up to ten fingers. It is much more portable and has greater processing power, memory and storage. Although this model was received positively, the first X1 Carbon had some disadvantages, such as no touch screen, and a 14 inch average screen with 1600 x 900 resolution. resolution.
